

'Wild Things and Gold Rings'

Workshops

Research by the Book Trust, The National Literacy Trust and The Letterpress Project shows that spending time with books clearly benefits the all-round development of babies and children of all ages. Not only do books change and enrich lives - they can bring everyone moments of great joy.

Our 'Wild Things and Gold Rings' workshops for parents, practitioners and children last for about an hour, are fully interactive and aim to make the love of books come to life through the use of conversation, quizzes and games. Most of all we want to bring along lots of examples of wonderful books for you to look at and enjoy. We can also suggest ways in which you can use these books with children in ways to help them become lifelong readers.

The Letterpress Project is a not for profit organisation which means that we are able to offer free taster sessions. After this our rates are negotiable. If you'd like to know more or you'd like to discuss what we could do for you, please contact Karen Argent at:

letterpress@btinternet.com or Karen.Argent@btinternet.com